

Is Frontline Fellowship The Mission For You?

Frontline Fellowship is a unique mission agency, requiring dedicated missionaries. This mission seeks to glorify God in the midst of demanding situations, facing, at times, extreme danger and extreme discomfort.

Frontline Fellowship recruits and trains men and women who are capable of:

- Assisting persecuted churches
- Evangelizing in war-afflicted areas
- Working for Reformation and Revival in Africa

Being a small, specialized mission, Frontline Fellowship is not a good choice for someone “wanting to do some missionary work during the holidays.”

REQUIREMENTS FOR SERVICE

Frontline Fellowship field workers need to be self-motivated and self-disciplined, capable of working, either on their own or in small teams, in cross-cultural situations. They must be able to speak the Word of God boldly to people who are in the grip of Islam, Communism or witchcraft. Often field workers are called upon to present in-depth Bible teaching to Christian leaders or to show Christian films to prisoners, guerillas or soldiers. Several field workers have been ambushed and bombarded while others have been arrested, interrogated, and led in chains to prison for a while.

Harsh tropical climates may cause field workers to suffer from fevers and infections. Many workers have been exposed to various types of debilitating diseases. For these reasons, we encourage all interested applicants to gain as much evangelistic experience as possible by reading, traveling cross-culturally, and developing their personal devotional life before applying to Frontline Fellowship. Excellent health and physical fitness is essential.

Each applicant requires time and training so we can only accept those who are willing to commit themselves to Frontline Fellowship for at least 18 months full-time or a minimum of three years part-time. This kind of complex and demanding work requires commitment. Frontline Fellowship is committed to being a good steward of the Lord’s resources.

CHARACTER TRAITS OF A FRONTLINE FIELD WORKER

The missionary work of Frontline Fellowship requires trustworthy and dependable workers who are self-disciplined and persistent, who can “be sure to finish the task you were given in the Lord’s service.” Colossians 4:17. A positive, enthusiastic attitude is essential in all our workers. “Whatever you do, work at it with all your heart, as though you were working for the Lord and not for men.” Colossians 3:23. Field workers must be able to take initiative and make decisions on their own, in stressful field conditions, being willing to make sacrifices for Christ.

If you are willing to learn and to work hard...under difficult conditions...then Frontline Fellowship may be the mission for you.
